SLIDING FEE:

Some providers may use this structure by charging clients based on their income. You may need to show last year's income-tax form or a paycheck stub. The business or organization supplements the lower-level fees by other means, such as a grant.

FAMILY DISCOUNT:

Some providers offer reduced fees for two or more children in the same family.

EMPLOYER DISCOUNTS:

In salary reduction plans, also called Dependant Care Assistance Plans (DCAP), employers and employees agree to set aside a certain amount of pre-tax income for the employee to pay for regulated child care expenses. The total amount is determined at the beginning of each year; however, caution is needed in determining that amount because unspent dollars are not refundable. The employer is not subject to state or federal taxes on this money. So, both parties benefit from this agreement.
